SOCIETY

The Governor and Mrs. Stubbs will give a reception at the governor's house, Thursday evening at 8:30 o'clock for the state officers, the supreme court justices, the members of both houses of the legislature and their wives. This function will officially open the new administration socially and will mark the beginning of the Stubbs regime at the governor's house. The Chief Justice and Mrs. Johnston, Lieutenant Governor and Mrs. Fitzgerald and the Speaker and Mrs. Dole will be in the receiving line with the Governor and Mrs. Stubbs.

Some alleged sentimentalists have been putting on a big show of indignation because a Topeka woman who had a horse no longer of service to her refused to either sell or give it away, and had it shot. Dr. E. A. Harding had two horses about twenty years old, Old Jack and Old Maud. Old Jack was of course of no value having outlived his usefulness between the shafts, but Old Maud, being a finely bred animal and in good condition, was still valuable as a brood mare. Both were equally dear to the heart of their owner, but she couldn't care for them properly as she does not maintain stables of her own and was obliged to trust them to caretakers who had proven unreliable. She put them on a farm last summer but learned a few weeks later that the people she was paying to pasture and care for her pets were driving Old Maud on a milk wagon. She brought them back to town and as she continued to have trouble in hiring suitable care for them, resolved to have them shot, surely a humane, reasonable and justifiable decision. But this was where her trouble began anew. Men who daily caressed the cruel and inhuman treatment of animals of all sorts, who believe it perky and proper to drown kittens, "can" or muzzle dogs, who oppose the intervention of the law in the cases of the mistreatment of horses and other animals, the society's efforts to abate the abuses of the dog pound—such men as these were indignant at the death of Old Maud. To shoot Old Jack, that was right, of course! Old Jack no longer had a money value and it was the best thing his owner could do in the circumstances. But because Old Maud was worth three or four hundred dollars to kill her was cruel, brutal and unpardonable. It was with difficulty that Dr. Harding persuaded anybody to be his mare's executioner. No humanitarians came forward with the generous offer to take Old Maud off her owner's hands. Dr. Harding would not spare her life. As the same people showed no solicitude for Old Jack, Dr. Harding was surely justified in regarding their offers with suspicion. What she wanted for her old horses, equally worthless to her, and equally dear, was good care and comfortable quarters for the rest of their days. That she had been unable to buy and she had no reason to believe that they would fare better in the hands of any one to whom she might sell or give them.

It will be found in the last analysis, that many fine sentiments have, like the indignation over the death of Old Maud, a pecuniary basis. Invitations were issued Saturday by the Kappa Alpha Theta sorority of the University of Kansas for their spring party which will take place Friday, January 23.

The Saturday night club will give an oyster roast Friday night at the Crumery at which the wives of the members will be the guests. The occasion of the spread is the gift of a barrel of oysters which will be sent to the club by Mr. O. L. Clarke of Galveston, Texas.

There is an old-fashioned proverb "Ask me no questions and I'll tell you no lies," which deserves more attention. It will be found that most of the lies told by naturally truthful people are forced by impertinent and embarrassing questions. It is a good rule to ask no questions more pointed or personal than "How are the folks?"

Some of the boys of the high school and college set are planning a subscription dance for Friday of next week at Steinberg's.

All the evidence points to the conclusion that the girls are growing more sensible. Mark the recent weddings, for instance. Many marriages but not one elaborate procession wedding. A popular girl who will be married tomorrow has been besieged by her friends to allow them to enter in her honor but she has sensibly refused to go to parties in her own person. The fashionable Topeka brides have gone to parties for three weeks before her wedding, sometimes attending two and three parties a day.

One of last winter's brides collapsed, a day or two before the wedding. The death of a young woman, who carried a torch at a fashionable wedding a few years ago, was the tragic incident in a series of gaieties in which, as a member of the bridal party, she had participated. So many parties and all so similar are given for the prospective bride at the hands of her loving friends that the members of the bridal party get so they can't look a cupid in the face and gag at the sight of party eats. If you want to make good with a bridesmaid don't feed her oyster patties, and fruit cake, but sauerkraut, spareribs and plain boiled potatoes. The very young things who have never been bridesmaids, will, of course, revive the old foolishness when their turn comes, but the girls who have been getting married this winter, the last of their set, have marched in too many processions to be stirred by the sight of pink ice cream in heart-shaped molds.

There will be a meeting of the Equal Suffrage association in the lecture room of the Public Methodist church, tonight at 7:30 o'clock. The public is invited.

The Western avenue 500 club will meet with Mrs. Cyrus Guthrie 515 Monroe street tomorrow afternoon.

The Informal club will meet with Mrs. Arthur Hodgins, 921 West Tenth avenue, Thursday afternoon.

When a woman assists another woman in a successful marriage, she assumes proprietary rights over her protegee and wants to boss her and the husband she helped to catch, from that day forward.

The Helianthus Literary club will meet with Mrs. H. L. Millard, 1270 Buchanan street, Friday afternoon.

Nothing is so disgusting as other people's love affairs.

The club women will have headquarters at the Club Member's booth at the Midwinter exposition. A special day will be observed Thursday of each year.

The next Elks dance will be given, not Friday of this week, as was erroneously reported, but Friday, February 5.

Mrs. W. M. Padgett will entertain her club at her home, 313 Eleventh avenue, east, Friday evening, January 23.

Notes and Personal Mention.

a second serious operation at a hospital. Mr. and Mrs. S. R. Kutz and Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Kutz have returned from Pratt where they attended the golden wedding anniversary of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. John A. Kutz. The Richardson Art Embroidery club will meet with Mrs. R. K. Hinkson, 716 Lane street, tomorrow.

"Men are but children of a larger growth."—John Dryden.

From Council Grove, a place which owes its fleeting importance to the fact that it has been chosen as the other end of a paper railroad, comes one of the Honorable M. F. Amrine, editor of a live, wide-awake newspaper. About the only thing Mr. Amrine seems to have brought with him from Council Grove is a grouch, which may be only apparent. He has been hanging around the legislature every session for many sessions, and this time he comes as a member of the lower house. Like the hound pup who wore the mustard plaster, he has been getting warmer and warmer, until, considering himself in a proper frame of mind for the ordeal, he secured the nomination, election and nicely stuffed Crosby Brothers chair. The small boy says he comes among us loaded with malice, not for his fellow man, but for his fellow boy. (Reference to opening quotation is now in order.) He desires to pass a law making the time-honored game of hookey a criminal offense. Of course, if Mr. Amrine desires it, we can kill the children and avoid further trouble in that line.

Amrine and the Small Boy.

To be sure Mr. Amrine is right. Unless the small boy attends school regularly and secures a good education, he cannot rise to the position of an editor, and eventually break into the legislature and violate the anti-smoke rule of the lesser house. An education is a necessity. With a good education, the boy may dig wells as well as anyone. (Of course the Spectator stole this from the late William Nye, and not from the Council Grove Republican. It is a good joke.)

"Delightful task! to rear the tender thought To teach the young idea how to shoot," remarks the late James Thompson. Mr. Amrine of Council Grove has cut out for himself a "delightful task" that of forcing the youth of the land to absorb education. He is bent on humbling their joyous yelp of the small boy is an abomination and the longer said youth can be restrained within the four walls of an unsanitary fire-trap schoolhouse, the better it will suit the anti-boy society. By all means, pass Mr. Amrine's anti-boy measure.

When Steve Cave came to the legislature, nearly a dozen years ago, he cracked the shell of history, and crawled within. He will be remembered as Prairie-dog Steve for a long time. Come now one Guilbert, of Logan county, in an attempt to steal his thunder. He has introduced an anti-dog bill. Of course, the doggie, profitably to their experience, during the Steve Cave regime, will start on a wild search for subterranean peace and quiet, and resist from any of the "punkin rollers" of western Kansas.
